Abstract

The Care Connectivity Consortium (CCC) is working to address and overcome the most critical and key challenges to effective health information exchange (HIE), to make HIE technologies more versatile and valuable for patients, caregivers, and healthcare organizations. By developing improved technologies for comprehensive, secure, reliable, and innovative HIE, CCC aims to enable healthcare provider organizations nationwide to deliver better, timelier, and more informed patient care.

Mission

CCC is a consortium of healthcare providers pursuing innovations in interoperability services for HIE. Its aim is to lower the barrier for improved HIE capabilities, to accelerate the adoption and value for all care providers and their patients. Its mission is to develop solutions that enhance the capabilities and performance of current HIE technologies; offer these solutions to the broader HIE community; and enable secure, reliable, and effective sharing of data among disparate health record systems.

Consortium History

CCC was founded in 2011.
